ASF callback doesn't last

Hundreds of American Steel Foundries workers who filed out of the Granite City plant June 23 went back to work Tuesday only to later learn the return would last four days.

A change in operations will immediately put on extended layoff status about a third of the returning 900 workers.

William Donovan, works manager of American Steel, owned by Amsted Industries Inc., has announced another plant shut down to last one week will begin Monday and affect the remaining workers.

Plans call for the plant to reopen Aug. 23 at a "lower level" of operations. The change operations will call for 200 less employees at the plant.

About 745 employees are already on extended layoffs.

The plant had closed in June due to a continued decline in demand for steel castings in the freight car industry. Company officials from the Chicago-based firm had warned then that until business conditions improve the plant could face further layoffs.

Donovan said during the six-week layoff period as the plant waited for steel casting orders very few orders were received. The manager said no orders for work have been received to occupy the plant past Aug. 23.

If no orders are forthcoming, the remaining workers could again face single or multiple weeks of layoffs.

Prior to the latest layoff, plant employees, who have been able to hold on to their jobs, have faced about 17 single weeks of unemployment since May 1981.

The employee benefits fund has been hard hit by the prolonged layoffs. Only workers with 20 years of more on the job can now receive special plant benefits. Other workers have had to depend on state unemployment benefits, according to a union representative.

Amsted Industries announced last month that sales throughout the corporation in the nine months ending in June were down $170.2 million, from the same period last year. Total sales for that period were $476.9 million.

A member of the area's Economic Development Committee, Donovan has expressed his optimism for the plant's long-term future here, despite the current situation.

Concessions essential for GC Steel to compete—Stack

By GARY SCHNEIDER

Press-Record Editor

"Obviously, we are having a lot of trouble in the (steel) industry. The question is, 'Can we survive?'" Jim Stack, president of Granite City Steel Division of National Steel Corp., stated Tuesday afternoon as, for the first time outside of steel circles, he gave the presentation on the condition of the industry which was given only to workers in early July.

Stack gave the slide presentation and talk at the luncheon meeting of the Granite City Rotary Club in the YMCA and admitted that he was uncomfortable with giving the talk before reporters, since it had been prepared only for employees. However, he noted, "It's all public record" and, he added, "None of the data contained has been challenged by labor."

He noted that the slide show was designed to show to employees and unions and "try to solicit a reduction in wages." At the time it was being shown to employees, the company would say only that it was designed to keep employees informed of the state of the steel industry and Granite City Steel.

Basically, Stack said, the condition of the steel industry nationwide is about the same as the condition of Granite City Steel, which expects to lose $85 million during 1982. "That's the frightening thing. We have just got to start turning this thing around," Stack told the Rotarians.

Refusal of Steelworkers' union presidents from across the country meeting in Pittsburgh, Pa., July 30 to accept "givebacks" and help steel firms reduce costs is seen by Stack as putting the employees and steel companies "in an adversarial position" which, if unchanged by next August, when the current Steelworker contract expires, could result in the longest strike in the history of the steel industry.

However, Terry Seabolt, vice-president of industrial relations for the Granite City Steel Division of National Steel Corp., predicted at the meeting, "The discussion hasn't ended with a vote in Pittsburgh two weeks ago."

Many Steelworkers have indicated that they would be willing to accept concessions in wages and benefits to protect their jobs, perhaps in the neighborhood of $2 billion a year, but Steelworker presidents who attended the July 30 session in Pittsburgh said they were unwilling to accept the proposed $8 billion in "givebacks" without realizing additional job security.

Stack said the American steel industry is facing declining income while its three major expenses — labor,

Predict loss of $85 million during 1982

energy and materials — are skyrocketing. Labor has shown a very large increase in cost, energy has been "going up every day," and materials have "gone up quite dramatically," Stack stated.

Stack prefaced his remarks, telling the Rotarians, "I wish there was better news." He noted that National Steel Corp. lost $90 million in the first half of 1982 and the outlook has not improved greatly.

"The days when we could pass on increased costs by raising the price of the steel are gone forever," he stated, noting that the competitive marketplace and availability of imported steel has made it impossible to sell American steel at higher prices. "We are making less on steel now than we were three years ago," he noted.

Meanwhile, wages have gone up. The average steel plant worker was making $1.91 an hour in 1950 and that rose to $18.45 by 1980. In February, 1982, the average steel plant worker was making $22.69 an hour while the average worker in other types of manufacturing plant was making $11.61 an hour, Stack noted.

Steel employees have always made premium wages, since there is a great deal of skill and hard work needed to make steel, Stack stated. However, he noted that the differential was much greater than workers in the petroleum, chemical, electrical and automotive fields.

One thing that has kept the steel industry from collapsing has been that a portion of the rising expenses has been absorbed through greater efficiency. However, other countries have made even more remarkable improvements in efficiency to move ahead of the U.S., Stack said.

A slide showed the number of manhours needed to produce one ton of steel in the U.S. dropped from 14.2 hours in 1960 to 9 hours in 1980, while manhours per ton in Japan declined from 40 to 7.4 hours in 1980. Canada is "continuing to improve," Stack said, noting that manhours per ton of steel in Canada dropped from 15.6 hours in 1960 to 8.5 hours in 1980. "Canada is going to be one of our toughest competitors in the future," Stack predicted.

The cost per ton of steel for raw materials and energy in the U.S. rose from $41 in 1960 to $138 in 1980, the slides indicated while Japan's cost per ton climbed from $62 per ton to only $115 in

However... New coke battery sought

Amid a very gloomy presentation on the state of the steel industry and an anticipated $85 million loss at Granite City Steel during 1982, President Jim Stack of Granite City Steel dropped one gem Tuesday afternoon when he could bring positive news for the future.

Stack told the Granite City Rotary Club that National Steel Corp., parent corporation of Granite City Steel, is currently considering appropriating approximately $70 million for constructing a third coke oven battery here.

"That will be it. That will be the commitment," Stack said of the implications of such an investment by National Steel here. The project would be the largest in many years here, exceeding even the new continuous slab caster in scope (The slab caster cost approximately $43 million, rebuilding B Coke Battery cost $42 million, relining both blast furnaces cost $42 million and rebuilding A coke Battery cost $35 million, all since 1978).

A shortage of coke has long been cited by Granite City Steel officials as slowing down the entire steelmaking process here. Coke is imported from other plants, when available, while raw steel is brought in from other facilities for processing here, since the basic oxygen furnace and hot roll departments have the capacity to process steel much faster than it can be produced by the blast furnaces here, which require coke in their processing of iron ore into iron, which then is purified into steel.

Stack said he hopes to hear "in a couple of weeks" whether or not National Steel will approve construction of the third coke oven battery.

Modern day mountain man enjoys a simple life

By MIKE MOORE

of the Press-Record

"Nature provides everything we need to live a good life," explained Chuck Streep, the 38-year-old, modern-day mountain man who is traveling east from the Rocky Mountains to see much of the rest of the country from horseback.

Streep is easy to identify in a crowd. He is the man wearing a deerskin outfit, accented with hand-strung beads. Mink furs hang from his shoulders. His Dan Haggerty beard and his California tan say that he is an outdoorsman.

"Just call me a tourist in buckskin," the Mountain Man said. "All Americans have a bizarre urge to adventure over the ridge. I just have a stronger urge. This summer,

I wanted to see what was over the mountains," Streep chuckled.

In 1969, Streep started traveling around the states, although this is the first time he has ever been on this side of the Rockies. "I used to be a title examiner for an insurance company in California. I even wore three-piece suits, but the city life was like a big fire to me. If your hand is in a fire, it's uncomfortable, so you take it out. I simply took my hand out of the fire," the Mountain Man explained.

Streep has traveled 1,200 miles, so far, on his journey this summer, starting at Fort Bridge, Wyo., on May 1. "I have been living day to day and hand to mouth. Actually, I live well. I haven't lost any weight," he claims.

"So far, I've met quite a few people, some rich, some poor, but everyone treats me nice. When I was at the Arch, I think quite a few people thought I was part of an exhibition in the museum under the Arch," the modern enigma said.

Mountain Man arrived in St. Louis Monday night and he was brought across the river to Granite City, where he is staying at McDaniel's Stables on Maryville Road west of Route 203. Streep, who prefers to be called only "Chuck," plans to stay in Granite City for one week.

"If anyone wants to listen to my stories or if anyone wants me to listen to theirs, come on over," Chuck invited.

"I've never met a man as interesting to talk with as Chuck is. I was even brought up on a farm and Chuck is teaching me all kinds of things," Jean McDaniel, owner of McDaniel Stables, said. "We're so glad to help him. He won't accept any charity," Mrs. McDaniel added.

Streep is traveling on two horses, between which he alternates riding time. "They're the best horses I've ever had. Nothing ever spooks them," he noted. One horse is called Palomino Zig Zag, because he does not walk a straight line, and the darker horse is named Shadow, because he always follows close behind. "If you want to know more about them, ask Shadow, because the shadow knows," Chuck joked.

When he is not traveling around the country on horseback meeting new people, he makes a living by trapping furs. "I never shoot an animal that is scarce, like eagles, wolves or black-footed ferrets," he promised.

Basically Streep lives off of the land. "The boxes on the back of my horses contain food and gear for the horses, not for me," Chuck said. "I can do well wherever I have to."

When Chuck threw away his three-piece suits, he made his own wardrobe from deer skins, tanned with the deer brains. If it becomes necessary, Streep can eat his clothes. When the clothes are boiled, they become edible.

"My clothes are very durable. They last from 10 to 15 years. If I get hot, I throw water on them and I'm cool for the day," he said.

Throughout his travels the most fascinating thing Streep has found is that children today do not recognize the spurs on his shoes. "Don't kids these days remember Roy Rodgers?" he asked.

Chuck has helped out as an advisor on movies about Indians and mountain men. He tanned the leather for the movie "Wind Walker."

"I'm never in a hurry when I travel. I plan to keep on doing it as long as I can, but the hills are getting a little steeper," he noted.

"Sure I get lonely, especially when I look into a mirror. I realize that too many people would like to live like this, but there are times when I would love to point out a beautiful part of nature to someone special," the Mountain Man concluded.

MOUNTAIN MAN. Chuck Streep, demonstrates how he determines how many hours until sundown. "It isn't important to me what the actual time of the day is, all I need to know is how many hours I have until the day is through," he said. Streep is traveling across the United States on horseback, leaving the land. He will be staying at McDaniel Stables for one week.

Big Band Machine entertains SEMC patients

Stan Fornaszewski and his Big Band Machine brought an hour of pure entertainment to patients and visitors at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

The 18-piece band offered selections ranging from old favorites such as "In the Mood" and "Two O'Clock Jump" to more contemporary tunes including Chicago's "Make Me Smile" and the theme from the motion picture, "Rocky" — all delivered in big-band style.

his first love, however, and his talent and determination have won him awards in competition with other drummers.

"For me, playing music is a lot of fun," Fornaszewski says. "In fact, it seems that most of my time is spent on music in one way or another. I just enjoy it that much."

He does seem to be having a good time when he performs, particularly when he swings into the ambitious drum solo feature in the Louie Bellson number, "Explosion." One observer who claims to have timed this solo, says that it is 11 minutes long. Fornaszewski just laughs and says he's not sure how long the solo is, but he does know that during one evening's performance that included a 20-minute solo, he lost six pounds.

free programming for Medical Center patients.

According to Fornaszewski, the Big Band Machine has been together for two and one-half years, performing both public and private engagements. This is the second summer that they have presented a concert series for the Granite City Park District.

"We get a kick out of doing concerts," he says. "This is the kind of music we like to play and people seem to like listening and dancing to it." His face breaks into a generous grin as he says, "music makes people happy."

Open Oncology Unit Aug. 22

By JOYCE MITCHELL
St. Elizabeth
Medical Center

Sunday, Aug. 22, will mark the opening of the new Oncology Unit at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. The Oncology Unit, a special area for the treatment of persons with cancer, will be open to the community from 1 to 3 p.m. that day.

The conversion of the fifth floor of the Doctors' Wing to the Oncology Unit was made possible by a $150,000 donation from the St. Elizabeth Medical Center Auxiliary.

The unit was designed around a philosophy of care that includes every detail from the selection of specially-trained staff to choosing pictures for the wall. According to Dr. William Popovic, an oncologist at the hospital, the floor, which features as much of a home-like setting as possible, can handle 22 patients.

There are six private rooms and eight semi-private rooms. Visiting hours will be based on individual patient's needs, with two lounges available to family members who may find it necessary to spend the night and enough private areas to allow small children to visit without disturbing the other patients. There also will be a complete kitchen available — a home-cooked meal can many times work wonders on a sluggish appetite, a spokesman noted.

According to Sue Fever, nurse manager of the unit, patient needs will be assessed on an individual basis and, with the patients' input, goals will be set to satisfy those needs. Each patient will have at his disposal a whole team of specialists, including physicians and other ancillary health care personnel, to help plan his treatment.

At 1 p.m. Aug. 22, there will be a brief ribbon-cutting ceremony with tours of the unit and refreshments to follow until 3 p.m. The unit will begin taking patients the following day.

4 St. Louisans on abandoned bridge charged

St. Louis County police officers in a helicopter spotted two men without shirts on top of a Chain of Rocks Bridge girder, apparently climbing the superstructure, during the weekend and notified the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

County authorities responded to the scene and also radioed the city of Madison, which owns the now-closed bridge.

Arrested and charged with criminal trespass to property were Kenneth W. Harper, 19, of Jennings, Mo., Terry L. Lewis, 20, of St. Louis, a 16-year-old boy and a girl, also 16, both from St. Louis.

All were released the same evening. Harper, Lewis and the 16-year-old youth each posted a $50 cash bond and the girl was released on notice to appear before juvenile authorities.

Assault charge filed in Madison

John Calvin Hall, 38, of 131 Grenzer Homes, Madison, who also listed an address at 104 Allen St., Eagle Park Acres, was charged with assault during the weekend following an argument at the rear of the Red Crown Liquor Drive-In, 312 Madison Ave., Madison, in which he allegedly fought with Laron E. Willis, 71 Grenzer Homes.

After an earlier incident, reportedly at the same location and also allegedly involving Hall, Madison police were notified by a Madison County deputy sheriff that a fight was in progress behind the liquor store and that he had a man (Hall) in custody.

Willis, who signed a complaint, told officers that Hall had entered the store, started an argument and, without reason, swung his fist at Willis, tearing his T-shirt.

Hall remained in custody until the day after the incident and was released on paying a $52 cash bond.

Townships debate levy to support police

The strength of rural police protection for the unincorporated sections of Chouteau, Nameoki and Venice townships could depend on how much taxpayers in those areas are willing to increase their taxes.

Three Quad-City area township supervisors said this week that no money is available in their township to enter into separate police protection contracts with the county without first imposing a special police levy.

Madison County Director of Administration Mary Kane sent out letters requesting that townships consider directly supporting the sheriff's department. Patrolling the rural areas costs the county about $1.7 million, she noted.

Sheriff Emil Toffant has told the county's finance committee that patrols will be cut back if the department's budget is reduced. The county is facing a $2 million general budget deficit, making budget cuts likely in all of the county's departments.

Although township supervisors seem uncertain how much money the county wants from each township, they see a higher overall levy as the only answer if the county stands firm on its request for financial aid.

In July, the county board rejected the idea of setting up its own special county-wide service area to pay for sheriff's duties in unincorporated areas. Members of the county's legislative committee decided rural taxpayers' bills could become too high.

But Chouteau Township Supervisor Walter "Dick" Sparks said he is looking at the same 46 cents per $100 assessed valuation (one third of a home's market value) the county board has figured necessary to maintain the level of police protection now provided by the sheriff's department.

"There would have to be a tax levy," Sparks said, who pointed out that his township's new levy is only $55,000.

In the opinion of the Chouteau supervisor, the issue would have to be brought before the township taxpayers, who have begun to scrutinize government expenditures.

He said that if townships eventually have to sign individual contracts with the sheriff's department outlining specific types of services, the board could be jeopardizing its exclusive control of that department.

According to Sparks, the Chouteau Board of Trustees briefly discussed the county's request at its regular Monday meeting, prior to tabling the request for consideration at a later date.

Nameoki Township Supervisor Harry Briggs said his board of trustees has referred the letter to its finance committee. Briggs, however, said he plans to discuss the letter with Sheriff Emil Toffant.

Briggs said that, although he has no complaints about the current level of police protection in Nameoki Township, a township never has adequate coverage.

"I don't think we could stand a cutback," the supervisor said. "We've got a big coverage area. It's a pretty long township."

The biggest crime problem facing Nameoki residents is vandalism, according to Briggs. He said crime is not a major problem, but could become one if adequate protection does not exist.

If the county asks the township to pay for police services, "We'd probably have to levy a special tax," Briggs said. At the same time, the supervisor said, he doubts taxpayers will approve any new taxes.

Supervisor Christ Paschoff said the Venice Township Board of Trustees will meet next week to discuss the county's letter. The supervisor said that if the township must decide between reducing services or raising funds to support the sheriff's department, he will look for ways to raise more money.

"When you reduce anything in law enforcement, you are looking for problems," Paschoff said. "You need police protection more than anything."

Under state statutes, each township may contract with the county for the amount of protection it wishes to have and pay for it by levying a tax. Godfrey Township currently has such an arrangement with the sheriff's department.

Paschoff, however, said Godfrey has several times the assessed evaluation of Venice Township and several large stores are located in Godfrey. Godfrey contributes about $200,000 annually to the sheriff's department.

Business and government officials praise new port plan

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record

About 200 people, mostly businessmen, gathered in the Mayan Room at the Bel-Air Hilton in St. Louis, Mo., Tuesday to voice support at a public meeting for $24 million in proposed changes at the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis, including a $14.1 million expansion of the Tri-City Regional Port in Granite City.

Business executives, politicians and concerned citizens expressed an almost unanimous desire to see the plan, which was outlined in a detailed study by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, become a reality.

The St. Louis Harbor Study examined various alternatives and proposed resolutions to determine the cause of sedimentation problems and to determine the "feasibility of providing improved harbor facilities." The Tri-City Regional Port was pinpointed as the best site along 70 river miles for new harbor and industrial development as a result of the two-year study.

The plan has been a long time in the making. Col. Robert J. Dacey, district engineer of the Engineer Corps' St. Louis district, said "to develop what we think is a package that will serve the area and the country in a time of crisis or mobilization (as well as during peacetime)."

Dacey, Col. Gary Beech, recently appointed district engineer at the Tri-City Port Authority, and Chuck Franco, study manager for the St. Louis Harbor Study, listened to those who spoke and accepted written statements.

State Rep. Sam Wolf (D-Granite

City), State Sen. Sam Vadalabene (D-Edwardsville), Mayor Tyrone Echols of Venice and Mayor Ken Evers of Edwardsville were among the speakers. Various other politicians, including Congressmen Melvin Price (D-Illinois), Richard Gephardt (D-Missouri) and Sen. John Danforth (R-Missouri) sent representatives to present statements supporting the proposed changes.

"The improvements we are discussing will provide benefits to suppliers, producers and shippers and subsequently maintain and create critically-needed jobs and income," Rep. Wolf said.

Several others urged adoption of the plan because its construction would create jobs. But the more questions asked about the time frame needed to make the improvements.

Franco said that an optimistic schedule would have the proposal finalized by the end of this month or September. In October, division engineers would review the finalizations and public review would again be taken prior to completion of a final report.

Under such a schedule, the completed recommendation could go to Congress between March and September of 1983. Construction on the Missouri bank to build an "L" dike in order to accelerate sedimentation could begin in 1983 and would constitute the first phase of the two-part plan. Proposed improvements on the Illinois side, which would occur in the Chain of Rocks Canal north of the present harbor, would not begin until 10 years after completion of phase one, under the plan.

Echols urged that the Army Corps of Engineers and Port Authority personnel speed up the process. "Venice is totally supportive," Echols said. "I am not pleased with the length of time (needed)," he noted.

Although he said he can appreciate the time necessary to complete detailed studies and make evaluations, Echols said, "if we can put a man on the moon in 10 years," the proposed changes in the port could be completed sooner than the time currently projected. "We need the improvements today. We need jobs now," he said.

Evers, speaking on behalf of the Southwestern Council of Mayors of St. Clair, Madison and Monroe counties, said that group is "totally in support of the recommendation."

Comments from others generally were supportive of the two-part plan, which was recommended after examination of 48 various alternatives and 36 various sites that would alleviate sedimentation and utilize the port to its full capacity.

One speaker, however, voiced disagreement with certain parts of the actual study. Although he commended the study and supported the plan, Dr. Guy Jester, president of the Association for Improvement of the Mississippi River, a lobbying organization of the Regional Commerce and Growth Association (RCGA) and vice president of Alberici Construction in St. Louis, said he thought the acreage requirements needed for construction were underestimated.

Jester added that the study did not seem to adequately consider federal fleeing requirements. Contending that parts of the study were based on "faux assumptions," Jester said, "we need to look at this thing from a global point of view."

Despite some criticism Jester said, "It's amazing how good the report is in some aspects."

In his opening comments, Jester mentioned retired Gen. H.T. Johnson's remarks as adequately covering the defense aspects of the port improvements. Johnson spoke on behalf of the RCGA.

"The non-military traffic along the stretch of river containing the port districts is 'staggering in its magnitude,'" Johnson said. "His main concern was approaching the improvements as they would relate to defense of the country in the event of war."

Johnson described the Quad-City area as being "a land-locked peninsula," boxed in by three rivers with "only one highway that does not cross the bridge." Highway 100, he added, is not a major thoroughfare and if the bridges included in the port authority area were sabotaged, the region "would be in a stranglehold."

Conversely, if the Alton Lock and Dam area were sabotaged, the same thing would happen.

"Don't dismiss this lightly. The Vietnam War showed that there are three willing to carry out sabotage (in this country). Do not dismiss this, thinking that a nuclear war will be the next war," he urged.

Johnson stressed the importance of completing the improvements for "the peacetime benefits" and concluded that the proposal would aid "national defense, or, if you will, national security."

Tri-City Port Authority representatives Harold Fisher, a port board member, and Carl Ranft, port general manager, spoke toward the end of the meeting.

"During my tenure, I've seen the port district grow from a good idea on paper to one of the busiest (inland) ports (in the nation)," Fisher said. He added that the port is operated as a business and commented that the port district has "created hundreds of permanent jobs."

He pledged the board's full cooperation in continuing with studies and construction.

Ranft, who has been general manager for 16 years, also pledged cooperation. "There is a great deal of work that needs to be done," he said. "The improvements would create a 'markedly-improved St. Louis harbor,'" Ranft said and would benefit areas far beyond the Quad-Cities.

Ranft emphasized that the improvements would help Illinois maintain its number two position in U.S. exports.

The study area includes the Mississippi River and its banks between the southern boundary of Jefferson County, Mo., and the northern boundary of Madison County. The 70 river miles incorporate the Port of St. Louis.

The actual proposal consists of the following two parts:

—Structural improvements to solve the severe sedimentation problem at River Mile 182 on the Missouri bank. Construction would include the "L" dike and would extend 200 feet from the Missouri bank and 2,800 feet south, parallel to the docks.

—Harbor improvements along the east bank of the Chain of Rocks Canal in Illinois at River Mile 185.

The 36 sites studied were considered as possible areas that could receive federal assistance with the two chosen on the basis that their development would yield the most benefits with the fewest disadvantages.

Water access at the Chain of Rocks Canal would be increased to about 1,000 acres of industrially zoned land under the proposal.

Each of the two phases would involve excavating 3,450 feet of canal bank with a total harbor length of 6,900 feet, excluding the Tri-City Port facilities present 5,000 feet.

Wildlife management practices and a public scenic overlook also would be included in the proposal, Franco noted during the meeting.

The first phase of the study, about $14.2 million, would be funded through about 34 percent from federal funds and 66 percent from non-federal sources. The second phase of the study, about $10.1 million, dealing with widening the Chain of Rocks Canal, would cost about 40 percent in federal funds and 60 percent in non-federal. Franco said the funding responsibility for moving utilities and railroads in the Illinois side construction area would be local with firms owning the proposed sites responsible for relocation costs.

Written comments may be submitted to the St. Louis Engineer District, Kevin Milligan, P.A.X., Room 936 at 210 N. Tucker Blvd., St. Louis, 63101, (telephone 1-314-263-5671) until Sept. 7.

'Blitz docket' Aug. 19

A "blitz docket" is scheduled for one week from today in Madison County

Circuit Court in Edwardsville to accelerate decided criminal cases and alleviate overcrowding in the Madison County Jail.

Prosecutors will attempt to negotiate as many guilty pleas as they can in 80 to 90 targeted cases. Prisoners could either be sentenced to the Department of Corrections or to probation, officials said.

Although this will benefit attorneys as well, by allowing them to finish many cases in a few days, the main goal is to lower the jail's high population.

The jail is designed to hold a single prisoner per cell, but whenever there are more than 110 prisoners, they are forced to double bunk, in violation of state rules. In recent months, the lowest count has been 117 prisoners with the population usually surpassing 130.

By expediting many cases, this should help reduce overcrowded cells and double bunking, officials noted.

Arlington water district is subject of Sept. 11 referendum

By KARL L. MONROE

An election to create an Arlington Heights Water District has been set Sept. 11.

The Water District will not have taxing power. The Arlington Heights Civic Association has taken the lead in asking for the election.

Virgil Ware, president of the association, said a preliminary application for a construction loan has already been filed with the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) underwriter.

The FmHA would cross the water treatment plant that was dedicated a few weeks ago.) A formal application awaits the results of the election.

Harry Briggs, Nameoki Township Supervisor, is helping the association. He has personal experience in getting piped water for the subdivision where he lives.

"Mr. Briggs has been very helpful," Ware said. Lucille Morgan, secretary, echoed the comment.

Ware said Marlene Miller is chairman of the water committee.

There have been explorations of ways to get a reliable supply of piped water, but they are very tentative until a district has been formed that has power to negotiate favorable terms.

Bill Luco, attorney for the association in the election, was unavailable for comment. He is out of town.

Mayor Mike Sasyk of Madison, a principal in the group that built Arlington Golf Course and developed the subdivision, said he tried about four years ago to work out a project that would bring water from Route 182 into the subdivision. Illinois American Water Company, which serves many areas, including East St. Louis, Madison, Venice, Granite City, Belleville and Caseyville, was one potential supplier.

Briggs said that two routes for a main from Illinois men's line on Route 182 have been mentioned. One would go down Illinois 111 and Arlington Road, and the other would go across the country. The latter plan would require easements from the farmers whose land would be watered.

Briggs didn't think there would be any difficulty getting easements because the farmers themselves would benefit from an assured supply of treated water, and by increased property values.

Mrs. Morgan mentioned two other possible sources of water supply. Maryville has recently dedicated a new water treatment plant off Illinois 157. Sugar Loaf Water District has been unable to negotiate a feasible arrangement for a source of supply. Sasyk mentioned the possibility that a main could be run down State Aid Route 35 and off to the north to the subdivision. And the city of Collinsville is only a mile and a half away.

But all of the people involved didn't even want to speculate about details of the system which may finally be worked out.

Instead, Ware, Mrs. Morgan and Briggs all stressed the need for an improved water supply of some kind for the residents of the subdivision.

Ware and Mrs. Morgan mentioned people have three filters on their 16- to 20-foot shallow wells. They follow up with water softeners that recharge every two days.

Mrs. Morgan said there are no septic tanks in the subdivision. Sasyk's group built a modern treatment plant to handle sewage for the whole subdivision when the golf course and subdivision were built 20 years ago.

Ware said fire safety would be enhanced by a piped water supply. The subdivision now relies on Long Lake Fire Department, which routinely brings a tank truck out. If the fire is near the golf course lagoon, which is used to water the greens, the firemen can pump from the lagoon.

Sasyk and his group sold the golf course last year and he is no longer involved in it. There are about 250 families in the subdivision, Sasyk said.

ARREST VENICE MAN

Clint Wade, 21, of 1238 (rear) Robin St., Venice, was transferred at 12:20 a.m. Tuesday from National City Police Department to Granite City on a 1980 warrant alleging failure to appear in court.

Expect to detect 12,000 cases of scoliosis during school year

By MARY RICHARDS
Health Advisor

It is estimated that nearly 12,000 cases of scoliosis during the 1982-83 school year. Yet, scoliosis is a deformity of which most people have never heard.

Scoliosis is a term used to describe a lateral S-shaped curvature of the spine. More than a million Americans suffer from this condition to a significant degree.

Medically, there are two main types of scoliosis — nonstructural, or functional; and structural. Non-structural scoliosis involves no changes in the vertebrae. The curve in the spine may be the result of poor posture, or it may be caused by a person's compensation for some other condition such as a discrepancy in leg length. This type of scoliosis can often be corrected simply by correcting the cause, usually without medical treatment. Structural scoliosis refers to a spinal curve in which the vertebrae are rotated. This condition produces visible changes such as characteristic "rib hump," spinal curvatures, differences in shoulder heights and in hip heights.

These sound like obvious symptoms that would be easily detected; yet, in most cases they are not. There are several reasons for this. One is that many physicians do not routinely screen children for scoliosis when they come in for physicals. Another is that many children do not have regular physicals. And still another is that the changes in posture caused by spinal curvature develop so gradually that the parents, and the child himself, may not notice them.

Even though the condition begins in early childhood, scoliosis is not easily detected until the child reaches adolescence. It is between the ages of 10 and 14 that the severity of the curvature increases rapidly. If it is not detected and treated, it can have serious complications in adulthood, such as heart and lung failure, chronic back pain, restricted activity and a number of psychological and employment problems.

If scoliosis is detected early, say in a 10-year-old, it can usually be corrected with a brace and the child can be spared the ordeal of surgery later on. This type of surgery is quite long and painful, and the recuperation from it can take months or even years.

There is a simple test which will detect scoliosis, and during the 1982-83 school year, the state health department's School Health Program staff will be training school nurses all over the state to conduct scoliosis examinations.

The test can be conducted during physical education courses when the children are dressed so that their backs and chests are not concealed — bathing trunks or shorts for boys and swim suits or shorts and halter tops for girls. The examination takes only a minute or two and requires no sophisticated, expensive equipment.

If a nurse does detect some sign of abnormality, the child will be referred to a physician for follow-up diagnosis and whatever treatment is appropriate.

Deadline for proposals to aid sexual assault victims

William L. Kempiners, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health, has announced that the department is now accepting proposals from qualified groups for the provision of services to victims of sexual assault. Providing these services is a component of the Preventive Health and Health Service block grant.

Kempiners said that the state health department will contract with the successful bidder to establish, in each of the eight administrative areas of the state, a variety of services to sexual assault victims. "The services to be offered include a 24-hour rape crisis hotline, support services to victims, training for those who deal with rape victims and community education," he said.

Copies of the Request for Proposal may be obtained by contacting Leonard A. Kutilek, Division of Emergency Medical Services, Illinois Department of Public Health, 525 West Jefferson, Springfield, Ill., 62761; telephone 1-217-785-2880. Proposals must be submitted by 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 20.

The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services is currently seeking persons 21 and over to work as advocates in the Granite City and Collinsville areas according to Pat Stallion, Resource Development worker in the Department's Granite City Field Office.

Advocates work with troubled parents and children in a "big brother-sister" capacity on a part-time basis, Mrs. Stallion explained. They are compensated for mileage costs and are paid an hourly wage. All advocates must be 21 years or older and have a car at their disposal.

For more information about the Department's advocate program, interested persons may call Pat Stallion at 876-8988.

Henry Newton

Henry Benjamin Newton, 70, of 2143 Grand Ave., was found lying in bed without signs of life and was pronounced dead at the scene by William Stenberg, Madison County deputy coroner, at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 10, 1982.

Mr. Newton told his landlady, Mrs. Bonnie Collier, that he was going to his upstairs bedroom to take a nap and, about 30 minutes later, Gibb Turner, a brother of Mrs. Collier, found the man dead. There were no signs of foul play and he apparently died of natural causes, according to official reports.

Mr. Newton was born in Kentucky and worked as a laborer for the American Steel industry, said only 80 million tons of steel. "We'll be lucky to get to 68 million tons this year and 1983 is not a forecast, it's a fact," said the Granite City Steel president told the

the same period, Canada's raw material and energy costs went from $51 per ton of steel to $114 in the same period while West Germany's cost climbed from $44 to $127.

Overall cost to produce a ton of steel in 1980 in the U.S. was $307, in West Germany $284, in Canada $218 and in Japan $183, Stack noted.

Stack described a dangerous "downward spiral" in which the steel industry has become trapped. He said increased unit labor costs clash with the inability to increase the cost of steel to produce no profits. The lack of profits and returns makes it undesirable to invest in steel companies, so the availability of capital for improvements dries up. Without additional capital, steel companies cannot modernize or remain competitive and, during this cycle, the cost of production increases.

"If this (downward spiral) is not broken, we are going to see a lot of companies going out of business," Stack said.

The percentage of income to the steel industry which actually goes into the pockets of the stockholders has been decreasing steadily since 1958, slides showed. In 1958, stockholders and plant owners earned five percent of the total income. In 1981, only one percent of income went to owners and stockholders, Stack explained.

Part of the problem is a lack of orders, he noted. In 1981, the American steel industry sold only 80 million tons of steel. "We'll be lucky to get to 68 million tons this year and 1983 is not a forecast, it's a fact," said the Granite City Steel president told the Rotarians. Meanwhile, had the Experimental Negotiating Agreement (ENA) not expired, Steelworkers would have been striking for $24 per hour by the end of this century, or $126,000 for 11 months of work, Stack noted.

He called ENA "dumb," saying it was a "two strike" agreement designed to avoid stockpiling and panic buying of steel before a strike and was working, in good times, but "was absolutely stifling when profits and productivity are down."

Stack concluded, "Industry has got to get a reaction and the unions have turned us down. They have a contract through next August and it's going to be a tough year. We can't borrow the money to get anything sensible."

He said workers cannot expect National Steel Corp. to reinvest everything it receives into steel facilities. "If we 100 percent of cash flow back into the plants, we would lose $2.1 billion in the balance of the 1980s. At 150 percent, there would be $3.5 billion lost. It makes more sense to put the money in... (a local) bank," he contended.

Stack noted that Granite City Steel was "highly profitable up to the end of 1979," when the cost line on the graph crossed the price line. Since then, costs have been going up six times faster than steel prices. Between 1975 and 1982, energy rose 246 percent, labor went up 108 percent and materials doubled. Steel prices increased only about 40 percent during that period, he said.

Since 1975, approximately $300 million has been spent on improving and modernizing the Granite City plant. Major projects included relining the A Cold Battery for $35 million, rebuilding the B Cold Battery for $42 million, constructing the continuous slab caster for $43 million and relining both blast furnaces at a cost of $40 million, plus numerous environmental improvement projects. "You can't expect a corporation to continue to support us to that degree long," he noted.

Granite City Steel has asked National Steel for a $70 million to construct a third coke oven battery and hopes to hear an answer in about two weeks. "That will be it. That will be the commitment," Stack stated, adding that if funding for the new coke oven battery approved, it will be a strong indication that National Steel plans to retain Granite City Steel as one of its strongest and most competitive plants and to ride out the recession.

However, Stack warned, "You can't expect that type of money from a corporation without returns," he noted.

Stack said supervisory personnel have taken their cuts to help the company try and stay competitive. "We have abused our supervisory personnel," he stated, noting that they have given up cost-of-living adjustments, merit raises, extended vacations, a stock investment plan and other benefits.

"Dramatic improvements" were made in energy consumption, compared to other steel plants in the U.S., but "it's not good enough," Stack told the Rotarians.

He said he feels that had the concession proposal been given to all Granite City Steel employees, it would have been approved.

County sewer rates expected to drop $1

Morris Miles, county sanitary sewers chairman, said last night that he will ask the Madison County Board Aug. 18 to reduce residential sewer bills $1 per month and to decrease commercial and industrial rates from 13 to 36 percent.

Miles said the reduction is possible after a recent review of operations reveals the special sewer district is solvent. The chairman said he hopes to be able to suggest further reductions after the county renews its sewer treatment agreement with Granite City next spring. Assistant State's Attorney Marshall "Zeke" Smith, departing legal advisor for the committee, said he expects the reduced rates to be approved by the county board.

Miles recommendation was approved unanimously by sewer committee members after County Board Member Roderick Bauder of Venice made the motion to accept the chairman's suggestion and to make the rate reduction effective Sept. 1.

If approved by the county board, as expected, residential rates will drop to $14.80 per month with $8.80 of that to provide for the sewer areas' operational costs and $6 to provide for Granite City sewer treatment costs.

Precoat Metals, the only private sewer user within the service area, is expected to receive a 36 percent break in rates, based on its usage per gallons.

The sewer committee approved the reduction after the Sewer Service Rate Analysis was conducted by County Auditor Arthur Fields. The auditor based his study on $511 residential users and the commercial and industrial users.

The applicants must be United States citizens, licensed attorneys and residents of Madison or Bond County.

Reverse discrimination could be one of the liabilities the housing authority faces if it signs the agreement, Miss Haroian said. "We'd be opening ourselves up to lawsuits."

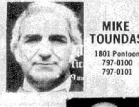

The authority's lawyer is looking over the agreement and the commission is scheduled to meet again to vote on it Aug. 17.

If an agreement is not signed in time for modernization funding this year, Miss Haroian said, the authority would resubmit its application next year. The authority will hold back on physical improvements and modernization work until funding is received, she said.

Extend protection to seniors.

Governor James R. Thompson has signed legislation that broadens the coverage of the Domestic Violence Act to protect senior citizens from mental, physical and financial abuse. "Protection of the elderly in Illinois is something that everyone, regardless of age, must be concerned about," the governor said during a signing ceremony at the Senior Center at the Illinois State Fair. "This is a measure that will significantly extend the protection of the Domestic Violence Act to include people 60 years old and older."

House Bill 2126, a measure that was passed without dissent in the House of Representatives and was approved by a 52-3 margin in the Senate, adds language to the Domestic Violence Act that will include advanced age as one of the criteria in issuing an order for protection. The bill also prohibits the use of an elderly person's financial resources for illegal advantage.

Under the provisions of the bill signed by Thompson, resources for the Domestic Violence Shelter and Service Fund, the financial pool that funds the protection of senior citizens, will come from county marriage and divorce fees. Senior citizens, under the provision of HB 2126, can contact one of the 13 regional offices of the Department on Aging where they can be referred to a local shelter for protection. The elderly who use the shelter system in Illinois can stay at a shelter during legal proceedings, a service offered to battered wives under the Domestic Violence Act.

Thompson commended the sponsors of the bill for their work with his staff and the department on Aging in drafting legislation that will extend protection to seniors by using existing current programs and does not involve additional expense to the state. The sponsors of the bill in the House were Representative Josephine Ollinger of Sherman and House Speaker George Ryan of Kankakee. Senate sponsors included Senators Adeline Geo-Karis of Zion, Vince DeMazio of Carlinville and John Davidson of Springfield.

HUD repair funds not out of reach - yet

By PAIGE ST. JOHN Although the Madison County Housing Authority Director says the authority has lost $4.1 million in federal funds by not signing a fair housing agreement, HUD officials in Chicago say the funding still is available.

Henry Schwartz, a HUD official in Chicago, said last week that the Housing Authority still has several weeks to come to terms with the Washington, D.C., fair housing office on a desegregation plan.

However, if no agreement is signed, he said, the authority very well could lose eligibility for the funds.

The authority has requested $4.1 million in modernization funds this year to repair and improve sewer and electrical systems. The authority also is in the process of signing a fair housing agreement with Washington.

Last Wednesday night, at a special meeting, authority commissioners attempted to sign the agreement, but the vote failed 2-2.

Authority Director Janet Haroian said she believes the Authority has lost its eligibility for modernization funds because of the vote.

It was her understanding, she said, that if no fair housing agreement was signed by last week (when the Chicago office began looking over modernization fund requests) the authority would get no money.

"From talking with the housing manager in Washington, because the housing agreement was not signed, modernization funds won't be OK'd by their office. Apparently, Washington does not allow any funding until something like that is signed," Miss Haroian said.

But the Chicago HUD office said modernization allocations have not yet been made. Before applications are approved or rejected, they must be examined by several HUD offices.

It may be one or two weeks before the HUD fair housing office sees the Authority's request. By then, a fair housing agreement may be signed.

However, Schwartz said, an agreement should be signed soon. "That time is getting short. We do need something to be done."

Although the authority requested $4.1 million in modernization funds to do repairs and improvements in housing projects around Madison County, if funding is granted, it will probably be much less than that. Miss Haroian said only half of the request is for "emergency work."

The authority and the Washington HUD office have been trying to work out a fair housing agreement for a little more than one year. Complaint

The fair housing plan is designed to bring about a racial mix in each housing project the same as the mix county-wide in authority housing.

Miss Haroian said Housing Authority commissioners now are unhappy with wording contradictions in the fair housing plan. "In one section it says one thing and later it says another," Miss Haroian said.

The main problem rests in clauses that state no racial discrimination will be made by the authority. Other clauses provide for preference to be given to tenants willing to move into projects where they would be a minority.

Reverse discrimination could be one of the liabilities the housing authority faces if it signs the agreement, Miss Haroian said. "We'd be opening ourselves up to lawsuits."

The authority's lawyer is looking over the agreement and the commission is scheduled to meet again to vote on it Aug. 17.

If an agreement is not signed in time for modernization funding this year, Miss Haroian said, the authority would resubmit its application next year. The authority will hold back on physical improvements and modernization work until funding is received, she said.

Park board rejects purchase of indoor recreation facility

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record

The Granite City Park Board failed after meeting in executive session last night to pass a motion approving a feasibility study concerning the purchase of a local indoor recreation facility.

The name of the facility is not being released. The park board is allowed to keep the issue secret under provisions of the state's Open Meetings Act which allow private executive sessions on land acquisition matters.

The proposed acquiring of a local indoor sports facility, which has been discussed for several months, is considered a dead issue with the board, since the motion for the study failed to get a second. David Nolan, director of parks, recreation, said following the meeting.

George Sykes, park board president, agreed with Nolan. "The only way the matter can be reconsidered is if a member other than Jeff (Worthen) brings it up," Sykes said. Worthen made the motion last night after nearly an hour of executive session discussion.

"I wanted to make a decision one way or the other so we could let the owner know what we want to do," Sykes said.

The Granite City Library Board, at its July meeting, also considered acquiring the building for a branch site. It had been suggested that the park board and library board conduct a joint feasibility study. That possibility, however, is considered slim in light of last night's park board meeting.

The board also rejected a request by Granite City Patrolman Douglas Law to amend the park's leash law to allow "responsible supervision" of pets, instead of requiring some sort of confinement of animals in the park.

Law submitted a letter to the board agreeing with a need for regulation, but adding that "effectively this ordinance keeps responsible dog owners from exercising their pets in the park while stray dogs roam at will."

Before the leash law, which has been a park ordinance for many years, was enforced, Law said he frequently exercised his dog in Wilson Park.

"The key word here is responsible. Some people are not responsible," Jack Hood, park commissioner, said. "We've been looking for somebody to correct our problem, but we've got a problem that, probably, nobody can correct," Worthen said in response.

Approval was made to pay the engineer and the board apparently determined that yearly cracks would be caused, but we've got a problem that, probably, nobody can correct," Worthen said in response. "People seem to request these four old crunks more than the two new ones," he said.

In other action, the board approved allowing park employees to join the city's that people take their dogs to sit on the trails," Nolan said, noting that he exercises his dog there and has not encountered problems with university authorities requesting him to leave.

Considerable discussion also was given to cracks in four of the Wilson Park tennis courts. Sykes said the cracks have been caulked and the courts repainted, but the problem will continue to occur each year.

An engineer was called in to study the problem and concluded that no material could repair the cracks properly and that resurfacing is the only solution. Several board members questioned the $1,312 fee charged by the engineer to inspect the damage.

Hood suggested that the board make a decision and get on with other business, as the problem has been considered for more than a year.

"We've been looking for somebody to correct our problem, but we've got a problem that, probably, nobody can correct," Worthen said in response.

Approval was made to pay the engineer and the board apparently determined that yearly cracks would be caused, but we've got a problem that, probably, nobody can correct," Worthen said in response. "People seem to request these four old crunks more than the two new ones," he said.

credit union.

The board also discussed the possibility of purchasing one or two used trucks for the parks. Nolan said the truck presently being used by the baseball diamond crew would be put to rest following this season. "I wouldn't even consider putting it back on the streets next April," he said.

The main problem appears to be caused by preparing the diamonds, because dust gathers under the hoods of trucks used to "drag" and maintain the various baseball facilities.

Approval of a resolution to mandate two trucks as surplus property was approved so that purchase of different vehicles can be considered at a later meeting.

Worthen initiated discussion concerning the need for long-range planning of expenditures. "I don't want to see us worry about things we can't pay for when there are things we can pay for," Sykes said. The discussion centered on the board's almost constant concern about possible major repairs that are, at the present, unaffordable.

The possibility of changing the Lincoln Place Recreation Center from oil to gas heat was considered; a fall softball league was discussed; lack of personnel to work concessions this late in the season was considered, and the ice rink schedule was adopted.

Weber employees are asked for donations

Employees of the Madison County State's Attorney's Office have been sent a letter asking them to contribute a suggested portion of their salaries to the re-election campaign of State's Attorney Don Weber.

The request for contributions is based on the employee's position and yearly salary and was sent by Assistant State's Attorney Tom Long, who also is treasurer of Weber's re-election campaign. Long says the letter was sent to employees without the knowledge of Weber. "The letter suggests 'appropriate' contribution levels, by salary, but advises employees to be guided by their consciences. There is no threat in the letter of consequences if employees do not contribute."

Prosecutors making $18,000 or more yearly are requested to contribute $2,250 in three equal installments of $750, due on Dec. 1, 1982, Dec. 1, 1983, and July 1, 1984. Attorneys making less than $18,000 have been asked to contribute $1,500 in three installments of $500. Other employees making less than $18,000 have been requested to make the same contribution. Other personnel were requested in the letter to make contributions of $750 in three $250 installments.

Long and Assistant State's Attorney Marshall "Zeke" Smith formulated the letter-request campaign. Smith said that a committee was formed to determine a way to raise money for Weber's re-election bid.

He said that about a year ago a fund-raising party was held for Weber and $10 a ticket was charged in order to pay indebtedness from the last election. But the fund raiser did not raise much money, in Smith's opinion.

"We started to write letters because we thought we had to do better than that," Smith said. However, a few employees evidently have been angered by the letter requesting contributions, Smith said.

"They work there. They really ought to think (about contributing)," he added. Because of the cost of running a campaign and because those employed in Weber's office could lose their jobs if he were not re-elected, Smith said he believes it is important for each employee to contribute. When asked if he plans to contribute, Smith replied, "certainly."

While Long wrote the letter, Smith voiced his support, saying he believed it was necessary to generate funds for the upcoming campaign. Weber presently is out of town, but Smith said he believes Weber would be pleased about the letter. "He's got to be glad. What else could he be?"

Most of the employees to which Smith has talked seemed in favor of the letter, he said.

Long was unavailable for comment yesterday.

Hiroshima devastation remembered by GC man

COMPLETE DESTRUCTION. Elmer Sullivan, 2901 Pershing Ave., took these photos of the city of Hiroshima, Japan, about two weeks after the first atomic bomb was dropped Aug. 6, 1945, on the city which eventually ended the war with Japan. The then Sergeant Sullivan, with the Army's 41st Division, was on a mission of searching out caves in the area for prisoners. The GC man's unit set out for Hiroshima from Okinawa shortly after the bomb was dropped and established a camp in the nearby city of Hitachi. Top left and bottom right photos show the general devastation of the atomic blast which leveled four square miles of the port city. Top right photo is of a disabled Japanese ship in the adjacent harbor and photo at left is of a road marker for the Hiroshima Air Field. Sullivan is originally from the Mitchell area and has lived here since his discharge from active duty after the Korean Conflict.

Edgar establishes toll-free hot line for area seniors

Illinois' 1.2 million citizens age 65 and older may now use a special toll-free telephone hot line, 1-800-252-2964, to receive information or assistance with problems involving his office, Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar said Friday.

"This hot line will help the 850,000 licensed Illinois drivers age 65 and older, as well as nondrivers, find out more information about the special services this office offers seniors, as well as information about other issues such as driver licenses, vehicle registrations and titles," Edgar said.

The toll-free hot line, established in addition to the secretary of state's office-wide toll-free number, will ring directly in the Senior Citizens' Division office. The line will be in operation from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Telephone calls result in arrest

After he allegedly made numerous telephone calls to St. Elizabeth's Medical Center, stating he needed help, and also called Granite City police, officers went to the home of Ralph L. James, 22, of 1619 (rear) Delmar Ave., this week, who denied making the calls.

The man reportedly made further calls to the hospital's emergency room and also called his former wife, who notified police.

Officers persuaded James to go by ambulance to the medical center, where he then refused treatment and was taken to police headquarters and charged with disorderly conduct, officers said.

James was released later the same day on payment of a $52 cash bond.

An accident on Madison Avenue near 23rd Street at 1:10 p.m. Monday resulted in injuries to Mrs. Sandra D. Pryor, 32, of 1478 Old Alton Road, and Rebecca Pryor, 6, of the same address. Both were taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for treatment and later were released.

According to official reports, Mrs. Pryor was driving a northbound vehicle and had halted for traffic turning left onto 23rd Street when her auto was struck from the rear by a vehicle operated by Charles E. Zeugin, 18, of 3121 Edgewood Ave.

when the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) granted the application of Waterway Communications System, Inc. (WATERCOM), to establish and operate an automated, integrated, interconnected communications system on the Mississippi, Ohio and Illinois Rivers and the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway.

The application is the first granted by the FCC to provide for such a system, which will meet the need for better ship-to-shore communications for vessel traffic on the Mississippi and connecting waterways. The system will be operated in the 216-220 MHz band.

STEAL FROM PURSE
Tawny Glendinning, Rural Route One, Granite City reported a yellow envelope, containing $83 worth of food stamps and $7 in cash, were taken from her purse while she was shopping Monday at the Market in Crossroads Plaza Shopping Center.

Jail terms for 3 charged with theft

Three out-of-town residents were each charged with two counts of theft following incidents allegedly occurring this week at P.N. Hirsch store, 3220 Nameoki Road, and Central Hardware in Crossroads Plaza Shopping Center.

Arrested were Ronald D. Jones, 46, of St. Louis, Albert Banks, 38, of Brooklyn, Ill., and Doris Reed, 35, of East St. Louis, who were taken into custody near National Super Market, Madison Avenue and Nameoki Road. Police were called to the grocery store parking area after a report was received that a woman, who had been in the store, was acting suspiciously near an auto in which a man was seated.

Permission was given officers to check the vehicle and three baseball caps, blue jeans and tennis shoes allegedly were recovered beneath the front seat. The male passenger also had a bottle of cologne, it was noted.

The man and woman said the owner of the vehicle was still in National Super Market and officers asked a second man, who came from the store, if the trunk could be searched. The man gave permission, but said he couldn't find the key. A key was retrieved from a wad of paper, which was stuffed between the seams of the carpet inside the vehicle.

Allegedly recovered from the trunk were four electric knives, two sets of shears and pillowcases and an electric drill. Jones, Banks and Mrs. Reed were placed under arrest and the vehicle was impounded, the report stated.

While in custody, four warrants, all alleging failure to appear on charges of theft, were found to be outstanding against Mrs. Reed. Three warrants had been issued by the Granite City Police Department and the fourth was held by the Madison Police Department. Bond on the warrants was set, at $5,000.

In a court appearance at 2 p.m. Monday, Mrs. Reed pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve 60 days in the Madison County Jail on each of the six charges, with the sentences to run concurrently. She also must pay $100 court costs.

Also in appearances Monday at the Granite City court, Banks and Jones each pled guilty to two counts of theft. Both men were sentenced to serve 21 days per charge in the county jail with the terms to run concurrently. Each also must pay $50 court costs.

Mittimus were issued and the three were transferred to the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville by sheriff's deputies at 4:10 p.m. Monday.

Movie for cable TV to be filmed here

Two local young men have decided to try their hand at that for which Steven Spielberg has been receiving so much acclaim — movie making. Actually, this local film is slightly closer to Charlie Chaplin's style — silent.

Ron Allen and Steve Hart are in the process of producing an original movie depicting the life and effects of a teenager's obsession with video games. The film is to be aired on South-Western Cable TV's Community Access Channel 1. The movie is not a documentary, but a half-hour story, according to the young film makers. This new venture is not new for the pair, as they have made six films as a team and combined have approximately 25 films to their credit.

Hart is a student at Columbia College in Chicago and Allen will be a senior this fall at Granite City High School North.

The movie is to be filmed, in part, at Galaxy Space Arcade, in the Mini-Mall behind Earl's Sporting Goods on Nameoki Road. It will feature local actors.

"We are actively looking for people to star in our movie. We need 35 to 40-year-olds to play the parts of parents and 15 to 18-year-olds that have some knowledge of video games," Allen said, adding "All actors must be serious."

There will be approximately four days of actual shooting time which is scheduled to start in about two weeks. The movie will be filmed with super-8mm equipment.

People interested in being in the movie should contact Allen at 931-0632 or Hart at 931-0289 as soon as possible.

Although details of the strike remain vague from both sides, it has been reported that on July 29, Holiday Inn officials placed an advertisement in a local newspaper that said applications for bartenders, porters, waitresses, hostesses, cashiers and breakfast cooks were being taken. The advertisement appeared three days before the contract the union workers was to expire.

The Holiday Inn, located at Illinois Route 157 and Bluff Road, is to remain open despite the strike.

Huntington's and heredity

Q. How is Huntington's chorea diagnosed and is there any way to find out if a person is a carrier of the defective gene? — E.S., San Diego

A. Huntington's disease is an inherited neurological disorder which is transmitted as an autosomal dominant characteristic that is, the disease is passed from one generation to the next without skipping a generation. If a person has the disease, his or her children each have a 50 percent chance of developing the disease. If, on the other hand, a person whose parent had the disease never develops Huntington's, then there is no chance of its being passed on to that person's children.

Huntington's chorea is diagnosed by the following methods: a clinical observation is made of a movement disorder accompanied by memory and personality changes, a positive family history of the disorder is established, and atrophy of the caudate nucleus is shown on a computerized tomographic scan of the brain, or a pneumoencephalogram.

At the present time there is no accurate method to determine if a person is a carrier of the defective gene before he or she develops symptoms of the disease. Since Huntington's disease usually does not begin to manifest symptoms until after 30 or 40 years of age, people who are "at risk" (who have a parent with Huntington's disease) should receive genetic counseling so that they are aware that they do have a 50 percent chance of developing the disease, and that if they do subsequently develop the disease they may have passed it on to any children that they bear. In this way, people can make informed decisions about childbearing in this situation — Dr. Doris Trauner, assistant professor of neurology, at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Q. After years of disabling pain following disc surgery, I had a scan which revealed an unusual buildup of scar tissue. My doctor recommended against further surgery and said there was no treatment. Can anything be done? I have heard that coating the nerves with a person's own fatty tissue during surgery helps prevent problems. I have also read that massive dosages of vitamin E can help. Do you know of any treatment? — M.F., New York, N.Y.

A. There are several causes of recurrence of pain following lumbar disc surgery, including prolapse of more disc tissue, extrusion of disc at a different intervertebral level or, as in this case, the development of fibrous scar tissue which conceivably could constrict nerves in the area.

Methods of investigation such as computerized axial tomography (CAT scan) or a myelogram might be necessary in your case to more accurately define the cause of the disabling pain. If a specific lesion is identified, then it is conceivable that further surgery might be warranted. However, repeated surgeries in this region are technically difficult to perform and may not attain a high level of success.

Fatty tissue placed around the nerves and their coverings is certainly performed to prevent adhesions of scar tissue to the nerves. Whether such a procedure is appropriate in your case is debatable, especially if your physician recommends against it. I do not know of any definitive evidence that massive dosages of vitamin E can assist in this problem.

Dr. David Gershan, associate professor of surgery, at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Research program to be offered this fall

Project EXCEL, a research program of remediation and developmental learning, will be offered at the East St. Louis Center of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville starting fall quarter.

The program is part of a new series of offerings and activities being developed at the East St. Louis Center since the phase-out of the Experiment in Higher Education was completed in June.

According to Miriam Dusenbery, director of the Academic Resource Center and an administrator of the program, Project EXCEL is the result of over a year of cooperative planning between the university and State Community College in East St. Louis. She explained that both institutions will share responsibility for the program; State Community College will recruit the students, while SIUE will fund and staff the program.

Project EXCEL offers instruction in communication, mathematics and study skills while providing tutoring, career counseling and related workshops to students of the program. Mrs. Dusenbery described the project as "a skills development program with a support system" and explained that one of the goals of the program is "to see whether we can retain students longer while helping them to pursue career goals. The end result of the program is to produce well-prepared, successful students," she said.

Students in the program will be team-taught. Classes will meet from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. daily in the East St. Louis Center of SIUE, 411 East Broadway. The faculty, according to Mrs. Dusenbery, will consist of teachers who have proven themselves successful in the area of developmental learning.

The program has been initiated to run for five years with an option for renewal at the end of the term. During these five years, Mrs. Dusenbery explained, the success of the project will be measured and charted for possible application across the country. "If we are effective in building skills and improving retention, we hope to invite others to look at our model. We hope to document our findings and publish the results," she said.

Instructional materials for Project EXCEL are being developed that will be directly related to student areas of interest. As an example, Mrs. Dusenbery said, health-oriented classroom materials are being developed for a number of nursing students expected to participate in the program. "Such materials will help to produce the best possible learning experience for the students," she said.

Mrs. Dusenbery said the program "gives students a career goal and helps them to achieve it."

For additional information about Project EXCEL, interested persons may contact Miriam Dusenbery, director of SIUE's Academic Resource Center, at (618) 692-3494 or Betty J. Moore of State Community College, an administrator of Project EXCEL, at 1-274-6666, extension 307.

For information concerning registration, interested persons should contact Evelyn Nicholson of State Community College at 1-274-6666, extension 215.

Block street, threaten man

After he had picked up a friend in the 2500 block of Lynch Avenue late last week, Ernest Cuevas, 519 Fleming St., Mitchell, reported an older model Chrysler, occupied by three men, blocked his way from exiting the area at Lynch and Stearns avenues.

Cuevas said he reversed his auto, got out and went into the dwelling of Patty Morris, 2544 Lynch Ave., where the men in the vehicle came to the door and threatened him. One of the men struck his jaw with a fist, Cuevas told police.

HEALTH SPENDING UP

Health care spending grew 15.1 percent in 1981 to $287 billion, or 9.8 percent of the gross national product, the recently-released Health Care Financing Administration's annual report on national health spending says. "The message in these statistics is that the policies of the past are continuing to bring us health cost increases well above the rate of inflation," said Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker.

Of the total health bill, 41 percent or $118 billion went to hospitals; $54.8 billion or 19 percent was spent for physician care; 8 percent or $24.2 billion went to nursing homes; and the remaining 32 percent was spent for dentistry, drugs, research and administration.

State adoption record

Adoption of children under state guardianship reached a five-year high in fiscal year 1982 as 947 children were placed in adoptive homes. Gregory L. Coler, director of the state Department of Children and Family Services, (DCFS), has announced.

Coler said this total is a 43 percent increase over the previous 12 months. He said most children were "special needs" youngsters, a category that includes black children of all ages, while and Latino youngsters older than age 10, handicapped children and groups of brothers and sisters who are placed together in one family.

"Since 1979, when there were less than 500 adoptions of children under state guardianship, the number of children placed in adoptive homes has risen sharply," Coler said. "We've gone all out to find caring homes for hard-to-place adoptable children and to make sure that these youngsters get the love and security they need."

Coler said that 731 children were freed for adoption by the courts last fiscal year, up 23 percent over fiscal year 1981. He said a new court-room authorized recently by the Illinois Supreme Court Chief Justice Harry Comberford for hearing neglect cases should boost adoptions even higher in fiscal 1983.

Coler said steps taken to boost adoptions in the past year include establishing a toll-free adoption hotline, revamping state laws governing termination of rights of natural parents who abuse or neglect their children, streamlining the agency's data processing systems and launching a multi-media public awareness campaign to recruit adoptive parents.

"I think we've really turned the corner in our efforts to improve the adoption picture for these children in Illinois," Coler said. "We're on a steep upward climb and all adoption statistics look encouraging."

Summertime Suzuki

These youngsters in the Suzuki program at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville learn the fun of music instead of the regimen that goes with traditional learning methods. The children learn to play string instruments by repetition and by listening. Lessons are not traditional and sometimes resemble games. The Suzuki method also tailors music to the youngsters by using instruments which are up to one-sixteenth the size of the original ones.

Workshop Saturday at rape care center

The Rape and Sexual Abuse Care Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is sponsoring an informational workshop, Saturday, Aug. 14, at the Multipurpose Room of the Tower Lake Commons Building on the campus.

This workshop will discuss "all aspects of rape and the myths that surround it."

Sessions will run from 10:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m.; it was announced.

Pam Klein, center director, and Stephanie Robbins, Edwardsville attorney, will instruct the workshop and give a general educational overview of the medical, legal and psychological aspects of rape.

Volunteers are needed to answer the 24-hour Rape Hotline at night and on weekends, according to Chairman Peggy Patty. For more information, interested persons may contact Maureen Sampson at the Rape Center 1-492-2197.

Prospective hotline volunteers may arrange for the necessary training after the workshop.

Natural gas for county vehicles? Seems unlikely

By JIM SCHLUETER
Limitations on mileage and slow refueling were two problems pointed out by the Madison County Board's central services committee last week as it studied the possibility of using natural gas instead of gasoline in county-owned vehicles.

"I just don't think it's for us," Committee Member

Herschel Beane, Godfrey, said. "But I think we should see the idea through."

Beane had studied literature from the Dual Fuel System of Los Angeles and the other committee members will also look at the fuel alternative before they meet with Cleveland Associates of Chicago, a firm which handles the Dual Fuel equipment. Committee Chairman Harold "Cotton" Roberts, Alton, said that natural gas would cost 50 percent less than gasoline, but he said that converting the vehicles to natural gas and setting up refueling stations could cost as much as $100,000.

However, the biggest problem with the conversation is refueling. It takes 14 hours to fill the two tanks that each car would carry in its trunk, and only 10 cars could be filled at one time.

Also, the maximum number of tanks each car can carry is two, which would allow the car to be driven about 90 miles before needing another fill-up.

Tennis is for fun, but Boker still serves it hot

SERVING IT HOT. Tom Boker may be not have made the Navy team, but he hasn't let that bother him. Last weekend, Boker won his division in the Granite City Park District tennis tournament. His plans for this weekend... A little R & R and more tennis of course as he participates in the Granite City Invitational.

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record

The image of a sailor on liberty has largely been drawn from movies and war stories which generally create the stereotype of men gone wild after days at sea or days spent on board ship. It is time for all the daughters of the community to be locked away and for every pub within miles to prepare for the worst.

But Tom Boker, a seaman on the USS Fulton in New London Conn., who is on leave and staying here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom (Fern) Boker, does not promote that stereotype when he is on liberty.

When Boker goes ashore he takes his tennis rackets, shoes and clothes with him and heads for the nearest court, either at the town's community club or at the Coast Guard Academy in New London.

His liberty routine has paid off as he recently won the Northern Regional Navy Tournament. In order to qualify for the regional, Boker won the Sub-base Tournament at the New London Submarine Base.

Despite winning the tourneys, Boker was not selected to play on the All-Navy team—which seems to be a source of displeasure for him. It was, he will admit, his own fault he was not considered.

To qualify for the team, players must submit an application to a selection committee. Not realizing the requirement, Boker did not find out about the process until after the selection had started. What peeves him the most is that a lieutenant he beat was chosen to play on the All-Navy team.

"I beat him 6-1, 6-2," Boker said of the final match he played in the qualifier against Lt. J.G. Ludholt. Coincidentally, Ludholt is captain of the Coast Guard Academy's tennis team.

"They didn't figure a person from the north could be good enough because they didn't figure we could play all winter long," Boker said and gave an oh-well smile.

Boker does play during the winter and certainly would be good enough to play on the All-Navy team. The competition is not always the best he said. Quite often, he seems to have the same sentiments about his competition.

One of the advantages to taking this three-week leave now was that Boker could play the Granite City Park District Tennis Tournament which was mostly played last week with men's doubles finals played Tuesday of this week.

As an added bonus, Boker will be able to play in the Annual Granite City Invitational Tennis Tournament, starting tomorrow night.

Tuesday night, he and Ron Backs, who was Boker's doubles partner, through four years at Granite City High School South, won the men's doubles in the park district tourney, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2, over Tom Berk and Mike Papes.

The victory gave Boker "the triple crown" as he jokingly called it. The men's singles crown was his after defeating Tom Longos and he and Susan Squires won the mixed doubles competition.

When he last played in the park district tourney two years ago, he was a triple crown winner.

"They don't figure a person from the north could be good enough because they didn't figure we could play all year long," Boker said and gave an oh-well smile.

Special significance has been placed by Boker on the upcoming invitational. "There's always a few players that dominate the tournament. I'll step in and surprise them," he said.

"Ah, I'm back."

Boker sat on a cushioned sofa in the living room at his parents' home. With one black-patterned pillow nestled under his left arm he talked about tennis, the Navy and his life.

Along part of one wall in the room, next to the fireplace, sat Boker's tennis trophies and assorted baseball trophies. Twenty-two tennis trophies are lined up against the wall. Three plaques are included in the assemblage of gold and silver. Two of the plaques were brought home with Boker and represent his recent Navy victories.

He enjoys coming home, he said, because "Granite City doesn't change. I don't like to see changes." There was a hint of nostalgia in his voice.

Although his light-brown hair is cut short on the sides and in the back with the top longer and a part on the left, it is impossible to discern that Boker is in the Navy when he is in civilian clothes.

With shorter hairstyles becoming more popular, Boker looks like any average clean-cut 21-year-old.

In fact, dressed in deck shoes without socks, designer blue jeans and a white and blue striped oxford shirt, Boker looked like a college senior.

His prep days of college are, however, at least temporarily on hold. After graduating from South in 1978, Boker started school at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. He played a lot of ping-pong there, he said and laughed.

"A combination of things—events" led to his enlistment. He politely declined discussion of the "events," but the impression was given that the time before his enlistment may not have been the best in his life.

It was the summer of 1980 when he joined the Navy and his parents, he said, were not altogether pleased with his decision. "My dad wanted me to do what I wanted to do," he said.

The Boker family consists of four children, including Tom, who is the oldest. He is close with his four younger sisters, Tracy 19, Joan, 18, and Julie, 12, and with his parents. "But they might tell you something else," he said with a smile.

Orlando, Fla., was Boker's first stop in his Navy career for basic training. During the eight months he was in Orlando, Boker played a little tennis, mostly just hanging with others who had recently enlisted. Right before a tournament there, he was sent to the Great Lakes region.

Having missed the first tournament he could have played in, Boker was looking forward to playing tennis at his new destination. But, right before the second possible tournament he could play in, Boker was sent to the Fulton.

There are no tennis courts on ship. After two years, Boker has been able to compete in only two Navy tournaments—the regional and the sub-base qualifier.

As fate would have it, those two tournaments are the last of the season including the All-Navy competition. Next June, Navy competition will start again.

"I just have to practice and wait until next year," Boker said.

Part of his practice will include winter indoor play at the Coast Guard Academy. Boker also took second in a recent civilian tournament, the SAAB Turbo Tournament.

Other men on board the Fulton were amused by how badly Boker wanted to play on the All-Navy team. "They said, 'see, he just wants to get out of work,'" Boker said. During the regional, Boker was off work for a week. "I'm really glad I took that week off and won," he said. Otherwise the kidding might have continued full force.

Life in the Navy is not all ten pins for Boker. Realistically, only a small portion of his time is afforded to the sport. From 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Boker supervises and works out of the rigging locker. The seaman's duties include moving anything over 250 pounds that cannot be manually moved from submarines at the substation.

"Usually they weigh a lot more like about 2,000 or 3,000 pounds," Boker said of the objects moved. Six men with hand chain hoists move whatever needs to be taken off the subs.

"The subs aren't like on TV with spiral staircases. There's a lot of twisted metal. Getting down in there can be pretty hazardous. You have to take your time. You have to take precautions," he said with a voice full of responsibility.

The Fulton's food is not bad either, he said. Recently, the ship won the Ney Award for the best food in the fleet. Plus, the Fulton is not an average ship. It is older than most, and Boker said he believes it may even be the oldest, having existed during World War II.

"The decks are wooden," he said. The Fulton's main function is to serve submarines in squadron 10. During wartime, the Fulton would go to submarines in need of food supplies, oxygen charges or other necessities. The crew, however, is not concerned about war. "Nobody's sweatin' it," Boker said.

Ironically, in the last two years, Boker has been to sea only once for six days when the Fulton went to Halifax, Nova Scotia.

With two years and one week left in the Navy when he returns to the Fulton on Sunday, Boker is already beginning to plan for his future. There is a possibility he could be promoted to petty officer in September. "It just takes tests, time and par sheets. You have to be able to do this and do that," he said.

"I've been putting some money away so that when I get out I can go back to school if I can't find what I want. Eventually, I think he would like to own his own business and work for himself rather than for someone else.

He seems sure of himself, confident he can do what he has planned. In fact, confidence seems to be a way of life for Boker.

Before playing the men's finals in the park district tournament, Boker's confidence was tested by Tom Longos, his opponent. Longos took the maximum time between matches then walked off the court around the courts to find out if Boker was ready. When Boker replied that he was, Longos said he had to get his rackets. "He tried to psyche me out, but I knew I was going to kill him."

Baker won 6-0, 6-1. Confidence kills.

McDonalds readies for playoffs

Perhaps if they had known that a two-game forfeit would drop them to fourth in the inter-city league standings, members of the Granite City baseball team would have played Maryville in a double header Sunday. As it was, a couple of team members, traveling in the team van, were out of reach, decided not to show up at Maryville.

The situation has got Corral manager Ken Crawford irked. He was angry all day Sunday he said and later in the week he still sounded disgruntled. The forfeit means Corral will face the first place McDonalds in a 1 p.m. double header at Wilson Park diamond No. 1 in the first round of play-offs.

McDonalds has beat Corral in three of the last four games the two teams have played. Not a promising situation for Corral, but Crawford is keeping it all in perspective.

"If we have all the guys there we could win," he said. "There's no reason why we can't."

Crawford and Doug Rains will share pitching duties Sunday. It is Crawford's hope that Corral's potential hitting strength will also be in full swing.

During the season Dave Hagenbrock and Tom Greco, two of the team's power hitters were playing collegiate baseball in northern Illinois. "You're talking eight his gone in a double header (between the two). (Rick) Daily and (Dan) Patterson played legions last part of the season.

That's why we're in a doubleheader," Crawford said and added that the team often without those two players.

Ironically, McDonalds could have the same problem as Corral come Sunday. This late in the season, some players begin to burn out on baseball or have other commitments with jobs and school. Ray Harris, McDonalds' manager, also is feeling the late-season pinch.

"I'm kind of wondering who will show up and who won't," Harris said. John Vrenick may be out of town and so might Tim Kirksey, who will pitch if he makes it back from Oklahoma where he has been job hunting.

Last weekend against Edwardsville, McDonalds lost the services of pitcher Al Yount, who was ill. It would be a boost to the McDonalds' line-up if Yount were to be back. "He did pretty well with Corral," Harris said. Yount pitched the first game of the last double header the two teams played and posted a 14-7 victory.

Yount and Keith Burton probably will split pitching duties Sunday, Harris said.

Both Crawford and Harris agreed that the games Sunday should be close. With both teams possibly lacking players, there will be little room for relief. Plus, the two teams know each other pretty better than any other teams in the league.

In order to advance to the second round, either of the teams must win both games of the double header Sunday. If a split occurs, a nine inning game will be played the following Sunday to determine who advances. A split is very possible between McDonalds and Corral.

The pitchers know which batters will take what pitches and the batters know what the pitchers are liable to throw. It's a "It's a big rivalry," Crawford said. "It's two Granite City teams. They've been the best because of our players being gone," he said.

Part of the depth Corral has lacked has been in pitching. Dan Herstein, who went 7-1 last year for Corral, has a job with Bell Telephone now and works 12 hours a day. Crawford said. And, Jeff Tretter, who can come in to relieve, is having surgery on his nose and will not play Sunday.

Crawford, Rains and Bud Pragma are about the extent of Corral's bullpen. With so few pitchers, weekends with double headers both days have added more strain to the pitchers.

Corral does have a hidden advantage in last weekend's forfeit. Rains and Crawford have now had two weeks rest. Crawford said both should come into Sunday well rested. "Doug's and my arms will be strong," he said.

Although Harris' team has not been afforded the luxury of two weeks' rest, he did not seem concerned about pitching problems—unless Kirksey and Yount are both gone.

Harris is concerned that because McDonalds has the edge over Corral with three wins out of four, that the team might think the game is going to be easy.

"We should have beat them four out of four. But we made mistakes that first game (of the double header) two weeks ago. We messed around," he said.

"They think it's going to be easy. Usually that's your first problem. You feel you don't have to work hard. But those 'easy wins' are usually harder than other teams," he said.

It also makes it harder that players on both teams tend to know each other fairly well. "We all think a lot of their players. The players get along. It's like North and South. We have players from both (high schools). Corral has more North and we do have more South players on McDonalds. I think there will be some real good baseball," Harris said.

Legionnaires end season in style

By A.L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record
It was a rousing finish to an otherwise humbling season. The Granite City Junior Legionnaires had posted a season record of 6-16, but Monday evening at the team's banquet that didn't matter—they're looking to next year.
Coaches Jeff Parker and Kevin Sykes thanked each player for participating, but not before Parker managed to add an anecdote about some humorous event during the course of the season.
It was a joyous occasion, Granite City High School South baseball coach, John Modica, who was instrumental in organizing the team (but not coaching), expressed his pleasure with the team's performance.
"We did it," Modica said. "Three weeks before the season began, I had my doubts, but with the help of the sponsors and the parents this season was a reality," Modica said.

Modica told the team that their 6-16 effort this year was merely a training season for next year. In conclusion, Modica told the team, in his half joking, half serious way, he didn't expect a winning season this year, but was hopeful that the team would be able to turn things around next year.

Civics fall; out of NBC

The Southwestern Civics lost both games at the Annual National Baseball Congress this week in Wichita, Kans.
Civics was paired against Conway County, Ark., Tuesday and lost 9-5.

The evening's guest speaker was former Granite City High School South baseball coach, Conrad "Babe" Champion, who still teaches at South during the school year, is a talent scout for the Philadelphia Phillies of the National Baseball League. Champion's presentation was an inspiring one that touched on discipline, on and off the playing field. He discussed too on overbearing parents and fans.

The season might be over for the players of the Junior American team, and they might have turned in their uniforms Monday evening, Wednesday Civics lost to New Orleans 10-4.
The tournament was double elimination therefore the Civics team is finished. They ended their season with a 29-19 record.
50 states were represented at the baseball congress.

Legislation aims at extending jobless aid

U.S. Senators Alan J. Dixon and Charles H. Percy have introduced legislation to change the method of calculating the "insured unemployment rate" (IUR) used to determine states' eligibility for extended unemployment insurance benefits.

Under present law, the 13-week extended benefits will "trigger off" Sept. 25 in states where the IUR (the number of persons receiving regular 26-week benefits) is below six percent.

The Dixon-Percy bill would include in the IUR formula persons receiving regular and extended benefits. (Should the 13-week supplemental benefits proposed by the House Ways and Means Committee — HR 6389 — become law, those recipients would be included in the IUR calculation, as well.)

"By changing the method of calculating the IUR, we will be able to more accurately reflect the number of individuals actively looking for jobs," Dixon said. "It is indefensible for us to continue to ignore those people who are currently receiving extended unemployment benefits."

Prior to passage of the 1981

Budget Act, recipients of regular and extended benefits were included in the IUR formula. The act removed extended benefit recipients from the formula, and raised the "trigger" for extended benefits to six percent, effective Sept. 25.

The Dixon-Percy bill makes the new calculation method retroactive to June 1, restoring to the qualifying list 10 states that "triggered off" extended benefits between June 1 and July 31. Those states are: Mississippi, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Arkansas, Maine, Minnesota, Delaware, Indiana, Maryland and Alabama.

"If the purpose of this program is to help those in high unemployment states, then it makes no sense to me to terminate it for those whose burden has been the heaviest and lasted longest," Percy said.

"If these recipients could be counted in the IUR, Illinois' rate would be in excess of six percent and would present a more accurate picture of conditions in the state," he said. Dixon and Percy estimated that nearly 150,000 persons would be affected in the 10 states, and another 50,000 would be added if Illinois "triggers off," as it would in the next few weeks.

Illinois welfare statistics indicate that the combined federal and state costs of supporting those who have exhausted their unemployment benefits on Aid to Families with Dependent Children and General Assistance are about equal to the costs of providing unemployment insurance.

Opposes state 'bodyguards'

State Treasurer Jerry Costantino will propose legislation in the next session of the General Assembly to ban the use of state policemen as bodyguards for all state officials except the governor.

"It is an affront to the people of Illinois to expect them to subsidize chauffeur and valet service by the state police for the Secretary of State and others," Costantino said. "Also, state officials should be forbidden from taking their bodyguards on vacation with them and making the taxpayers pick up the tab for airfares and hotel expenses," he added.

Costantino is the Democratic candidate for Secretary of State.

Exhaustion and sun stroke are serious health hazards

Advice on how to help avoid health hazards associated with hot weather has been issued by William L. Kempiners, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

"The two most significant health problems associated with hot weather," he said, "are heat exhaustion and sun stroke." Heat exhaustion occurs when a person builds up too much body heat from strenuous activity on a hot day, in or out of direct sunlight.

"With heat exhaustion," Kempiners said, "the victim may feel dizzy, faint or nauseated, and may develop a severe headache. His face will become pale, he will perspire heavily and his breathing may become shallow." Heat exhaustion can be fatal if the patient does not receive prompt medical attention.

To help avoid heat exhaustion, Kempiners advised consuming extra amounts of fluids and recommended water, fruit juices or fruit-based drinks such as lemonade. "Drinks like tea, coffee, soft drinks or any liquid that contains caffeine, and alcoholic beverages should be consumed sparingly during hot weather," he said. "These types of beverages often act as mild diuretics, and so increase the loss of body fluid," he explained.

In addition to increasing fluid intake, Kempiners recommended staying indoors as much as possible, postponing as much strenuous activity as possible until the weather is cooler, and wearing lightweight loose-fitting clothing that will not interfere with the evaporation of sweat.

"People who work outdoors should take frequent breaks in the shade, or in the coolest available place, and have ample supplies of water or fruit drinks available at all times," he said.

"Sun stroke," Kempiners said, "is different from heat exhaustion, in that it can occur with or without strenuous activity. Just sitting in the sun for too long a time can cause sunstroke."

In a case of sunstroke, the victim's face will become red. His skin will feel dry and hot to the touch, his body temperature will be high and he may lose consciousness. Prompt medical attention is necessary.

Kempiners advised, "If you are in the heat or sun, and you begin to feel nauseous or dizzy, develop a headache, or begin to feel ill in any way, the best thing to do is to get immediately to the coolest spot available and sit or lie down. If the symptoms do not begin to ease up within a few minutes — or if they become worse — medical attention is needed."

"Although air conditioning is desirable during hot weather, it's not essential. You can make yourself more comfortable if you stay indoors and use fans, or open the windows, to circulate air," Kempiners said. "Also, cool baths or showers will help, as will closing the blinds or curtains when the sun is coming directly into the windows."

He also cautioned that jogging, bicycling or other outdoor exercise should be confined to early morning or evening hours, and avoided during the hottest part of the day.

17 earn top music ratings in Kansas

Seventeen students of National School of Music have returned from the 1982 annual Mid-America Music Festival held in Topeka, Kan. It was a fun-filled weekend with plenty of musical overtones, according to Burel Schmissner, owner of the school.

There were 888 contestants from 45 studios, representing nine states. The nervous and excited youngsters performed on drums, guitars, pianos and organs in the solo division, duets and one ensemble. They performed two songs by memory for a judge and each was graded individually. A score of 95 or higher was rated superior and trophies were awarded. The contestants performed in 31 categories.

After returning to Granite City, special recognition was given to Jeff Held for receiving 100 percent on two solo selections played on the guitar and in a guitar duet with Tami Wickham.

Everyone worked very hard to receive such high honors, but it wasn't all work, Schmissner said. In their spare time, the contestants and parents had a dip in a beautiful pool located in the middle of the Ramada Inn complex, he noted. They were entertained by the higher intermediate and advanced Orkettes and stage bands on Friday night. On Saturday night, the UMKC Conservatory, Accordion Orchestra and the UMKC Show Band, under the direction of Joan Somme, performed for an appreciative audience. On Sunday afternoon, all of the superior winners were awarded trophies before their return trip back home.

Two hurt on State Aid 35

Two Granite City motorists were injured, including a woman who was seriously hurt, in a near head-on collision during the weekend on State Aid Route 35 east of Highway 111, according to the Illinois State Police.

Elaine Fournis, 26, Box 438A, Rural Route One, Granite City, driver of one of the vehicles involved, was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center with fractures to her left foot, left leg and right ankle and multiple abrasions to her body. She was admitted and underwent surgery. Her condition Tuesday was reported good.

Driver of the second vehicle was Larry Ligibel, 29, of 3225 Rodger Ave. He also was taken to the Granite City Hospital with injuries and was admitted, but had been released prior to Tuesday.

HITS MAN IN CAR

Nathaniel Pryor, 124 Garesche Homes, Masche, Mo., was seated in an auto, parked in the 1000 block of Calhoun Street, Venice, talking to his former wife, when a man walked up to the vehicle and started hitting him, he told Venice police during the weekend. Pryor sustained a swollen forehead from the incident, the report said.

STATE FIRE LOSSES DECREASE 24 PERCENT
Governor James R. Thompson recently announced that insured fire losses paid in Illinois declined 24 percent in 1981 compared to 1980, according to reports.

"Such a large drop in the number of insured fire losses paid in Illinois is an indication that fire prevention practices by the public are working and that firefighting techniques practiced by fire services are effective," the governor said.

State Fire Marshal Jack Carter said that more than $79 million in insured fire losses were paid in 1981, a $24 million drop compared to the $103.7 million the year before, according to figures from the Department of Insurance.

Those figures do not represent the total loss from fires in Illinois, Carter said, nor do they take into account uninsured or underinsured losses or losses paid by non-licensed insurance carriers. The total amount of fire loss in 1981 could reach $150 million and perhaps as high as $200 million in 1980, Carter said.

KNOCKED TO FLOOR
Robin Kee, 2330 Benton St., reported this week that a man punched her in the face, knocking her to the floor, then struck her head on the floor and a dresser. The incident occurred at her home, she told police.

Traffic lights off on W. Pontoon

Traffic signal lights on West Pontoon Road at Missouri Avenue (former Route 3) were shut off Monday and replaced with stop signs, according to notification by the Illinois Department of Transportation to the Granite City Police Department. IDOT said the lights will remain covered for a three-month period.

By JIM SCHLUETER
Madison County has to "take the bull by the horns" and make decisions now on the 1983 budget, according to Board Member Fred Dalton, and he thinks the finance committee has that responsibility.

Dalton told his fellow finance committee members last week that there are moves to be made that shouldn't wait until fall, when budget decisions are usually made.

The county is facing a $2 million general fund deficit, and the finance committee has spent recent months gathering information from departments that are likely to receive budget cuts next year. However, Dalton, who is from Collinsville, said it's time for the committee to act.

"Action has to get started somewhere, and this should be the place," Dalton said. "We have a priority list, and some departments are listed near the bottom. If we are to stand by the commitment we made (to using the lists), we must act on the priority lists before budget time."

The previous week, the finance committee received the priority rankings of the 31 general fund departments based on questionnaires returned by 16 of the 29 board members.

Dalton said decisions should be made on departments that received a low ranking, and he used the parks department as an example.

Parks were last on the list, and Dalton said the county should talk to the townships about taking over the county's eight parks.

"It would be wise on our part to bring the parks in and make a move now, instead of having to deal with them at the time of the budget," Dalton said.

County Auditor Arthur "Pete" Fields agreed with Dalton, saying that decisions on consolidating departments and the use of federal revenue sharing funds will affect how the county can allocate its revenues. Those decisions should be made before budget items are determined, he said.

"Consolidation would allow you to make one budget item instead of two or three," Fields said. "And it has to be decided what to do with federal revenue sharing because that leads to availability of money in the general fund."

Board members had hoped to use federal revenue sharing money for capital expenditures only and none for employee salaries because of the threat of dwindling federal funds.

However, the county could alleviate some of its budget problems by using the federal money for salaries.
